Calla Floral Design provide the flowers for Brian and Amy's big day

Staff at Calla Floral Design in Strokestown were overjoyed when celebrity couple Brian O'Driscoll and Amy Huberman decided on Calla to provide the flowers for their wedding day last Friday.

Owner Josephine Rogers reported that the couple were extremely easy to deal with and displayed no nerves on their big day, but rather were excited and looking forward to the occasion.

"They made contact with us in late January had a number of consultations and meetings before they decided to go with us. They went on recommendations and decided we were the florists that were going to be able to give them what they wanted on the day over other florists all around the country.

"They looked at the experience we have on wedding work and the service that we give to brides and grooms, from the consultation to the end product. They felt that that was what they required for their wedding.

"With continuous consultation we came up with a look that the couple had envisaged, sophisticated and elegant, but with a girly theme to it, with pinks and whites.

"We used a selection of pink and white flowers, which included Sweet Avalanche roses, pink peonies, pink hydrangea and some pink and white stock for scent. These flowers were used throughout the bridal party, church and hotel. The church decoration was quite traditional, whereas the hotel was where they put their own personality and stamp on it. We arranged the flowers from the rehearsal dinner right through to their wedding dinner and decorated the hotel from reception through the bedrooms, tearooms, right through to the function room and this included a mix of all of the above flowers put in lanterns, bird cages and silver pails.

"They were exceptionally easy to deal with. Like any bride and groom, they were happy and wanted to get married and wanted it to be as stress-free as possible for them. They were both happy with what they received and gave wonderful praise to the staff in Calla Floral on the day of the wedding. Neither bride nor groom were nervous on the morning of the wedding, just happy and excited. They made our job very easy, as did the staff in Lough Rynn, who were also involved in the consultation process, Kieran Reidy and Ruth Conlon, and the rest of the staff in Lough Rynn were more than helpful and made our job very easy.

"We would hope that our work on this wedding and the fact that we were chosen by this couple, would relate to all brides and grooms in the west of Ireland, that they feel that they could come to us and receive the same quality of service and quality of product on their wedding day. We are open to all brides and grooms regardless of budget size or wedding size and we will treat them all equally, as we have done in the past, which is what has gained us our wedding reputation.

"I just think they were such a down to earth couple, they felt they could work with local people and get the quality of service and didn't feel the need to bring people from the city of Dublin. They knew that they would get the quality and service outside of Dublin city. It goes to prove that you can get all the quality and product in small towns in Roscommon and Leitrim, so shop local is the theme."

Josephine also complimented and thanked her own staff who worked hard in the months leading up to the wedding and on the week of the wedding. "It's not a one-man show and I want to thank Margaret, Caoimhe and Brendan."

"Dates are available for 2010 and 2011. Consultant is free and we would love to meet all brides to discuss their wedding flowers with them." For further information contact Calla Floral Design, Strokestown on (071) 96 34658 or (086) 6040778.
