Strong interest in community enterprise

Despite the tough economic times, the enthusiasm and spirit of enterprise amongst community groups in County Roscommon continues to be very strong, going by the level of interest in a community enterprise training programme piloted by Roscommon Integrated Development Company and delivered by WESTBIC.

The eight-week programme was attended by participants from ten community groups across the county, all with community enterprise projects that they are developing in their areas, including community centres, training facilities, youth projects, activities for older people, community tourism, community festivals and other community enterprises aimed at specific target groups.

The course brought participants through the process of establishing and developing their community projects and also provided information and support on applying for LEADER funding for eligible projects. This has resulted in the upskilling of community group representatives and the generation of a number of project applications, which will go forward for funding through the LEADER programme, administered by Roscommon Integrated Development Company.
