Master Composters to give demonstration

Would you like to learn how to reduce your waste and save money by shopping more economically? If so, visit Roscommon Amenity Site from 10.30 am to 12.30 pm on Saturday morning next, July 31st, for a composting demonstration from Master Composters Lesley Clapison, and Christine Walker.

Master Composters are individuals who have committed some of their time to promoting food waste prevention and composting throughout their local communities. Lesley and Christine took part in the voluntary programme and the national pilot of this initiative was held in Frenchpark, Co. Roscommon throughout the month of October 2009 where thirty members from local communities became Ireland's first Master Composters. This training was held in conjunction with Roscommon County Council.

Number of creditors' meetings increases

The number of creditors' meetings held in County Roscommon in the first half of 2010 is already equal to all of those held last year and the county is on course to have double the number of creditors' meetings this year.

Information on creditors' meetings recently released showed that creditors' meetings in Connacht in the second quarter of 2010 accounted for only 5.8 percent of the national total.

One meeting was held in County Roscommon in the second quarter of this year and three in the first quarter, giving a total of four in the year to date, compared with four during 2009. In 2009, there were two creditors' meeting in the first quarter and one in second and third quarter, with none in the final quarter.
