

Mickie Timothy weekend in Williamstown

Mickie Timothy Festival gets underway in Williamstown

The Mickie Timothy Traditional Music and Set Dancing weekend commences in Williamstown on Thursday 5th August in what promises to be a very entertaining festival for all concerned. The event will run for four days with plenty to do and see for Irish traditional lovers nationwide.

This will be the 9th annual festival and promises to be bigger and better than ever with concerts, céilís, workshops, music, dancing and singing sessions, as well as music competitions.

The official opening takes place on Thursday with a concert with Seamus McCormack, the National President of the Comhaltas Ceoltóirí Éireann in the Parish Hall. This will be followed by a variety concert at the same venue while there will be a music session taking place later that night in Tarmey's lounge.

On Friday there is more music with Shilleagh providing the entertainment in Feeney's Lounge. Saturday sees the commencement of the workshops at the festival with a sean nós workshop with Mairead Casey taking place in the Parish Hall at 11 am. Later that night there will be a céilí with the Annaly Ceile Band, which promises to attract a big crowd.

Proceedings come to a halt on Sunday where there will be music competitions taking place in the Parish Hall. At 8.30 pm the Singing Club take over Kennedy's Lounge in what promises to be the perfect way to bring the festival to a close.

So if traditional music and dance is your thing then get yourself along to the Mickie Timothy festival next weekend. It promised to be an event not to be missed.
